

Senators took seats in a section reserved to the north of the casket and the members of the House filed into seats to the south of the bier.

Nearest the coffin were the members of the Senate and House committees delegated to accompany Admiral Dewey's body to Arlington. The marble walls of the rotunda were banked with flowers and palms. Among the large wreaths sent were those of the President, the naval gun factory, the Daughters of the American Revolution, the general board of the navy, the Society of Manila Bay, the Atlantic fleet, and members of the Cabinet.

Impressiveness Lent.

The very nature of the adornment of the marble wall of the rotunda lent additional impressiveness to the funeral services of Admiral Dewey. On these walls were historic paintings, recording on canvases the progress of the nation from the surrender of Cornwallis to George Washington. On pedestals about the place were statues of Ulysses S. Grant and other wartime heroes and a large plaster cast of the face of Abraham Lincoln. Slightly more than 1,200 seats were provided for the funeral services and all of them were filled before the body of Admiral Dewey arrived. There was no admission to either wing of the Capitol today except by special card and the police arrangements were carried out in perfect detail.

Tribute by Senate.

The Senate, in pursuance of the order adopted yesterday, met at 10:30 this morning, and, after business chiefly of a routine nature, went in a body to the rotunda of the Capitol to attend the services in memory of Admiral Dewey.

CLOSING ORDER MODIFIED

Wilson Also Gives Men of Independent Departments Holiday.

The order of the President, closing all of the Government departments today, was misconstrued in certain divisions, and the fear that many of the employees would be required to work today, while others were given a holiday, caused no little concern. At the Government Printing Office, the order which read that the "Executive offices" of the Government would remain closed throughout the day, was interpreted as meaning that the big print shop, the Navy Yard, and similar independent bureaus were not included.

Edward W. Morcock, president, and F. C. Roberts, business agent of Columbia Typographical Union, went to the White House, and took the matter up with Secretary Tamm. The order was carefully studied, and it was seen that it did not apply to the independent departments, notwithstanding the fact that the President had reference to all departments of the Government here.

The words "and independent branches" were inserted in the order, and the White House notified the Government Printing Office, the Navy Yard, and other departments of that effect.

THAW SHOWS NO CHANGE

Physician Feels Confident of His Ultimate Recovery.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 20.—No change was recorded in the condition of Harry K. Thaw today, according to announcement from St. Mary's Hospital.

"Mr. Thaw is still in a dangerous condition," hospital authorities said, "but Dr. Elwood Kirby feels no alarm. Dr. Kirby is considerably disappointed that Mr. Thaw does not grow stronger more quickly, but he displays absolute assurance as to his patient's ultimate recovery."

THE FUNERAL CORTEGE

Upon the conclusion of the services in the Capitol at 11:30 o'clock this morning the Dewey funeral cortège was formed in the east plaza of the Capitol grounds, in the following order:

- (a) Police under direction of Major Pullman, mounted.
- (b) Escort under command of Rear Admiral J. H. Glennon, commanding cortège of midshipmen, marines, seamen, and soldiers. The regiment of midshipmen, 1,200 men, commanded by Captain Nulton, participated. The marine detachment consisted of six companies under command of Col. C. G. Long. The seamen contingent comprised a battalion of infantry from the U. S. S. Arkansas, and companies from the U. S. S. Mayflower and U. S. S. Dolphin. The army contingent was made up of Company D, of Engineers, from Washington Barracks, and cavalry from Fort Myer.
- (c) Clergy. Chaplain Frazier in carriage.
- (d) Remains of the admiral of the navy on caisson. Twelve body bearers, seamen from Dolphin and Mayflower. Color bearer with admiral's flag at half-mast. The family of the deceased. Members of the general board of the navy. Survivors of the battle of Manila Bay.
- (e) Officers and enlisted men of the army, navy, marine corps and coast guard on duty in vicinity of Washington, marching in inverse order of rank.

The Assistant Secretary of the Navy.
The Secretary of the Navy.
The President.
(f) Distinguished persons, including members of the Cabinet, the Diplomatic Corps, and the Supreme Court, Senators and Representatives.

(g) Delegations and societies.
The funeral cortège proceeded from the east plaza of the Capitol through the Capitol grounds to the northward of the Capitol to Pennsylvania avenue; west on Pennsylvania avenue to M street, west on M street through Georgetown to the Aqueduct bridge; thence to Arlington.

At Arlington the burial services were conducted by Chaplain Frazier, U. S. N.; three volleys were fired by a company of midshipmen, and nineteen minute guns were fired by the saluting battery at Fort Myer.

Taps was sounded by Chief Master-at-Arms Charles Mitchell, who was on Admiral Dewey's flagship at Manila Bay and remained with him during the remainder of his cruise in the Far East.

VETERANS IN HONOR PLACE

Five Hundred Follow Diplomats in Funeral Cortège.

Five hundred Spanish war veterans led by Commander-in-Chief Daniel V. Chisholm occupied a place of honor, following the Diplomatic Corps, in the funeral cortège, as it passed silently up the Avenue. Many of the men were old comrades of Admiral Dewey's and their faces showed the grief and sorrow caused by the passing of the Hero of Manila Bay.

Commander Chisholm represented the organization at the funeral services in the Capitol. Lee H. Harris acted as military leader, and was accompanied by Adj. Gen. James E. Maynard and Quartermaster Gen. James J. Murphy.

The following department officers of the United Spanish War Veterans were in the ranks:

Lee H. Harris, department commander; James E. Maynard, senior vice department commander; Charles J. P. Weber, junior vice department commander; H. B. Coulter, department adjutant; John A. Gallagher, chief of staff; John Warner, department quartermaster; Joseph J. Harvey, department inspector; E. Hudson, department surgeon; and James E. Wilson, department marshal.

SENATE LIKELY TO BALK

Expected to Refuse to Abolish Office of Supervising Architect.

Although the office of Supervising Architect of the Treasury was abolished by the public buildings bill passed by the House yesterday by a vote of 234 to 92, it is not believed the Senate will approve this provision in the measure.

When the bill goes to conference after Senate amendments have been made it is expected the House conferees will consent to the striking out of this provision. The action of the House toward the Supervising Architect's office is said to have been caused by what Congressmen call "inexcusable delays in beginning the construction of public buildings after appropriations were authorized."

BARACA OFFICERS ELECTED.

The newly elected officers of the Baraca Class of the Fifth Baptist Sunday School have entered upon their duties. They are: President, Dr. A. W. Cummings; first vice president, E. T. Rice; secretary, J. T. Elliott; assistant secretary, R. L. Miller; treasurer, S. L. McWhir; custodian and librarian, J. William Utterback; teacher, W. E. Mooney; assistant teacher, R. H. Yates.

TO SPEAK ON AFRICA.

James Barnes will give a lecture at the Howard Theater tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock on his trip through Central Africa from coast to coast.

1,227 MIDDIES PAY TRIBUTE TO DEWEY

Youths From Annapolis Make Imposing Appearance as They Fall Into Line.

One thousand, two hundred and twenty-seven young men, to whom the country will some time entrust its protection on the seas, arrived in Washington this morning to do their part in paying tribute to a man who reached the top of their chosen profession.

The regiment of midshipmen reached Washington over the electric line from Annapolis, in sections of two cars each following at five and ten minute intervals, under command of Lieutenant Commander Gannon.

An imposing appearance. As each detachment of midshipmen arrived they were marched to their respective positions, either south on Fifteenth street or east along New York avenue. They formed in battalion front formation, until the street was massed with young sailors. Attired in their dark blue overcoats, glittering with brass buttons, with their white cartridge belts, leggings, and gloves, they made an imposing appearance.

While the men were in line they were allowed to stand at rest, but were not given permission to leave the ranks.

Parents Search Line.

Mothers and fathers, with admiration in their eyes, searched a long line of bluecoated, rosy-cheeked, embryonic admirals for sons or kinsmen. One mother accompanied by her small son came to see her sailor boy. She was prepared. Under one arm she carried a huge bundle of lunch; under the other a folding camp stool. She was determined that her boy should not suffer by standing during the long wait of the day.

A little after 10 o'clock the regiment of midshipmen had arrived. Lieutenant Commander Sinclair Gannon and ranking midshipmen officer, F. E. Haavale, took their places at the head of the long column.

Led By Academy Band.

Orders rang out down the companies, followed by the command "March," and keeping step to the beat of the muffled drum, their guns carried at perfect angle, the regiment from the Naval Academy began the march.

They were led by the Naval Academy band, followed by the bugle and drum corps of midshipmen. Following them were the First, Second, Third and Fourth battalions, consecutively. They marched down Fifteenth street to I street, west along I street to Seventeenth and thence north in Seventeenth to K. The long column turned into K street and, with eyes held rigidly to the front, the midshipmen passed in front of Admiral Dewey's residence.

Flag Draped in Black.

The hearse stood at the corner of Sixteenth and K streets. As each company passed, the command "Eyes right" was given. As the colors

PROMINENCE GIVEN BOYS IN INAUGURAL

Scout Organization Will Have Big Part in Parade Under Present Plans.

A Boy Scouts from the District of Columbia will play the most important part during the coming inaugural ceremonies that ever has failed to a local organization of scouts.

Plans being perfected by H. H. Grogan, scout commissioner, and secretary of the Boy Scout section of the inaugural committee, call for the biggest representation of young Americans for duty on March 5 that the country ever has seen.

To assist in the Scout work, a committee of representative Washington business men was designated today, and on Monday will begin on preliminaries.

Those Named.

A. F. Williams, W. S. Warren, J. M. Wolcott, A. J. Williams, G. M. Winship, W. H. Walker, A. C. West, John L. Weaver, John F. Wilkins, Frank J. Wagner, the Rev. J. Ralph Wright.

500 Bands in Line. Inaugural music will be furnished by something like 500 bands, which have asked for space in the big parade of March 5.

Colonel Harper, chairman of the inaugural committee, said this afternoon that everything indicates that there will be the more musical organizations in line at the coming inauguration than ever before. There will be a number of girls' and women's bands, and arrangements for giving them a prominent position in the parade are being made today.

One of the first organizations to apply was the American Indian Band, of Alexandria.

The New Willys-Knight

You will concede the luxuriousness and beauty of this car without argument.

Its practical advantages finally determine its purchase.

The motor has no equal—no near approach in any similar car selling for so moderate a price or for hundreds of dollars more.

It is a Willys-Knight sleeve-valve motor, 12000 produced last year and giving the most remarkable satisfaction.

Everyone knows that nothing has ever seriously challenged the noiselessness of this type of motor.

It has the softest "purr" combined with the greatest power for its size.

Its velvet smoothness puts all other motors of like power to shame.

It loves carbon and hates the repair shop.

It will serve you years longer—thousands of miles farther—than any other type of motor.

And it is the only motor known that does its best work in its old age, after putting all its rivals to rout in its youth.

The Willys-Knights are value pre-eminent because they share proportionately in the economies of our vast production of a complete line of cars.

See us now about your new Willys-Knight and avoid the possibility of delayed delivery during the spring rush.
